A Journey into Quality

Duerre

The philosophy that has always guided Duerre at its core lies quality, understood as the meticulous management of the entire production process. Everything produced at Duerre is carefully checked at every stage of manufacturing, right through to delivery to the final client. This ensures furnishings that integrate perfectly into the environments for which they were designed.

The combination of advanced technology and the experience of our craftsmen allows us to achieve results that blend innovation and tradition. Every day, our team of designers and architects explores creative solutions to meet our clients' needs. At Duerre, quality also means respect for our team: every collaborator is unique and valued. We ensure that all members are motivated and committed to achieving company goals, so that we can continue growing together.

In Tuscany, the provinces of Pisa and Florence and the Val D'Arno area are commonly known as the "furniture district." Since the post-war period, these areas have witnessed the flourishing of a strong craft culture: many small workshops where skilled artisans, assisted by young apprentices eager to learn the trade, carefully created the furnishings that would enter Italian homes.

Over the years, small workshops grew into larger companies, generally family-run; some of them chose to grow even further. Duerre was born in this territory, inheriting a deep connection with family tradition, a love for beauty, attention to detail, and a strong focus on quality.

Our headquarters, at the foot of the Pisan mountains and near the historic fortress of Frederick Barbarossa, symbolizes pride in our origins and the vision of an increasingly ambitious future.

Duerre originated as a small artisan workshop in the 1940s. From father to son, tradition evolved with the determination to grow and excel, specializing in nautical furnishings.

Generation after generation, knowledge and experience have been passed down, combining manual skill with the precision of industrial techniques, constantly maintaining the passion and product focus that allow us to offer clients unique furnishings. Today, Duerre is a team of over 200 people, where craftsmanship merges with innovative production processes to deliver high-quality furnishings capable of meeting the most diverse requirements.

History

Technology and Craftsmanship

We firmly believe that one cannot look to the future without respecting and enhancing the purely artisanal tradition from which we come. At Duerre, innovation is at the service of tradition.

The most advanced technologies are integrated with the manual skills of our craftsmen, creating a production process that combines precision and passion. Modern machinery works alongside traditional workbenches, and this synergy allows us to optimize processes without sacrificing artisanal quality. The manual expertise at the heart of our history is supported and enhanced by our technicians and designers, who work side by side with our carpenters. This daily exchange allows both to refine production processes and improve the quality of the final product.

The Culture

It is something a single word cannot describe, yet at Duerre we treasure it: we call it the Culture of Furnishing. It arises from history, experience, and passion, and it is what drives experienced craftsmen to pass on their knowledge to new generations in a continuous flow of information. At Duerre, the Culture of Furnishing is more than just tradition: it is a philosophy rooted in passion, experience, values, and identity. This culture enables us to create furnishings that tell stories and adapt to the times and styles of every era.

At Duerre, we believe sustainability is essential to ensuring a better future. Our production is guided by respect for the environment and for health.

We use solar energy, monitor atmospheric emissions, and reuse wood waste as raw material. For us, sustainability is not just a choice but a daily commitment reflected in every product, made with wood sourced from controlled and certified plantations.

Technical Office

At Duerre's headquarters is the Technical Office which, together with the production area, represents the beating heart of the company.

A large open-space environment where decorators, designers, and engineers work daily, supporting each other in continuous exchange to transform ideas into concrete projects. It is here that furnishings are imagined, conceived, studied, developed, and drawn. The interdisciplinary approach and constant dialogue among professionals allow us to develop innovative, high-quality solutions that meet every client's needs, offering furnishings that are not only aesthetically refined but also functional and innovative.

The synergy between our internal team and external collaborators enables us to successfully tackle even the most complex challenges.

Partners

Duerre's success is also thanks to its partners. Every supplier, from materials to technologies, is selected to contribute to company growth and to guarantee maximum quality and reliability at every stage of production.

We also rely on specialized training services for our staff to maintain the highest standards of excellence in every process.

We look to the future with optimism, convinced that our success depends on our ability to innovate and to face tomorrow's challenges with determination.

After more than seventy years, Duerre is now a true industry, with excellence as its hallmark. It would have been impossible to imagine that from a small workshop would emerge a company capable of positioning itself as a leader in the furnishing sector.

Duerre's success lies in the capability of its people: its leaders, who can see far ahead; and its staff, who have mastered the best technologies and embraced increasingly demanding challenges.

The future is often unpredictable, but at Duerre everything is possible.

the Future

A Great Team

Duerre is a great team, where every member contributes to the company's success.

Every day, we work with enthusiasm and commitment to ensure that every product meets the highest quality standards. Customer satisfaction is our priority, and every project is approached with passion and dedication.

At Duerre, we work together to build a successful future, day after day.
